Sister of Trade Minister nominee Alan Kyeremanten, Bridget Darko, has passed away.

Brigitte Kyerematen-Darko died Wednesday morning.

Bridget Darko died from injuries from the recent La Gas explosion. Her shop was located near the area the gas explosion occurred and hence sustained her injuries when the fire resulting from the explosion extended to her shop.

Her death brings to 12 the number of casualties in the explosion, which occurred in December last year.

She was married to one Mr. Darko of GC-Net.

According to the Ghana National Fire Service, preliminary investigations have pointed to a gas leakage at the station.

Mrs. Bridget Darko was the Executive Director of Aid to Artisans, Ghana (ATAG), a non-governmental organization (NGO) that was established in 1989 to support the development of the Craft Industry in Ghana.

She read Development Planning for her first degree, and has a post-graduate diploma in Industrial Management from KNUST, Ghana. She subsequently acquired an MBA (Finance) from University of Ghana and completed the Programme on Investment Appraisal and Management (Harvard Institute for International Development).

She has since then participated in a number of other training program.
